1. At the end of the Moorish path located behind the auction house of Port-Vendres, turn right. Walk along Rue de la Mirande street, then Rue Arago, also called "sun street" because of it faces due south. Arrive at les quais du vieux port quays and pass in front of the church Notre Dame de Bonne Nouvelle. Take the left to reach le quai de l'Obelisque. Its name is linked with the square which overlooks the quay, with an obelisk made from Roussillon marble can be admired. Go back and go along le quai Jean Moulin, then les Quais Forgas et François Joly.
2. Go round the marina which can contain 254 boats and since 2009 has had the sea certification label « Pavillon bleu » for protection of environment. Then follow le Quai République.
3. Pass in front of the tower clock, that was destroyed in 1930 to allow the to be enlarged and then rebuilt identically further away . Go round the technical zone of the commercial port Port-Vendres, known for its port activity dating back to antiquity, is now the second largest international fruit port in the Mediterranean. Continue along the road until you arrive at the railway.
4. There, take the left path that joins the roundabout from the cycle path. Take road along the pier on the right for a few hundred meters. Just before the tunnel on left, a sign indicates the beginning of the "Sentier des Redoutes".
